Wausau, Wis. (September 3, 2019) Jeffrey Saxton, vice president of mortgage at Peoples State Bank, has recently completed the Graduate School of Banking (GSB) program at the University of Wisconsin – Madison. Saxton’s graduating class marks the 75th year of the school.

Over the course of 25 months, the program helps banking leaders through a curriculum of advanced management education and is widely recognized as the nation’s leading and most progressive banking school.

“I feel strongly that my Graduate School of Banking experience will enhance my career,” said Saxton. “It’s given me the knowledge and network to be a leader in the banking industry.”

GSB students acquire a broad knowledge and understanding of major bank functions and their interrelationships and develop the skills required to lead and manage effectively.

“Jeffrey exemplifies Peoples values through his daily interactions with his mortgage lending team and our customers,” said Maureen Jorgensen, senior vice president of retail sales and service. “His leadership is an asset to our community banking team.”
